The name already implies that it is nothing but a tool to create GIF animations. This software is developed and distributed by Two In The Box, a German company. You can also set it to loop over a preset number of times. At the bottom of the interface is a list where you can preview your animation and save it with a different filename. The software is both an image converter and a picture editor and it isn't a bad idea at all to try it out. It comes with no viruses and very few limitations as far as usage is concerned.
