In each of these cases, overzealous police officers were caught on video shooting unarmed suspects directly in the head or neck in places without easily accessible body cameras. In a city where police are already federally investigated and fined for unconstitutional shooting of suspects, Milwaukee was outraged and immediately began an investigation to determine whether the officers involved in Robinson's death violated the Fourth Amendment by shooting him without probable cause, showing that in fact they did not. Then he was down. pic.twitter.com/Z9zJq73NKD While Milwaukee had no such outrage and no such investigation, it was soon after Robinson's death that Milwaukee's Mayor Tom Barrett issued a formal apology to the Milwaukee Police Department (and, indirectly, to the
