With this software..The revelation that former president Barack Obama will take part in a Google, Larry Ellison and Sergey Brin-led company is just the latest in a series of Google search changes that have divided the tech world. These include the late-February change of Google's autocomplete feature, when an input of "Siri" no longer brings up Siri's name; the temporary removal of YouTube comments in favor of "YouTube censors comments that are flagged by users"; and news that Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg's photo is now "unliked." Now, it appears that Obama is joining this list, with the World War II commemorative coin at the heart of it. "Next year on the 1st of January at 3:11pm, the Obama 2010 coin will be released to the public. This coin celebrates the 100th anniversary of America's entry into World War II, and serves as a tribute to the extraordinary men and women who made it possible. In addition to the President's portrait, this coin will include a security paper hologram, which is created by Cambridge Security Devices," reads the official Obama 2010 Commemorative Website. A few days before the coin was created, Republicans even tried to halt its release, according
