Coupons are one of the best savings strategies because they're low-risk and you're likely to save money even if you don't use them. When you redeem your coupons for savings at your local grocery store, you're doing what's called "couponing." By couponing, you're able to buy groceries for less than if you shopped alone or bought less food. Since many people have multiple people in their households, couponing helps to save money for everyone in your household! In addition to saving money, couponing is also a great way to encourage your kids to eat healthier and help them save money! And it's an easy way to teach them the value of money! Did you know? Coupons have been around for more than 100 years, but they were actually banned in the early 20th century. Why? The government thought that consumers would waste money buying items they didn't need. Now that they are legal, people have found a variety of ways to save money. Some people prefer to search for coupons online and print them out, others clip coupons from newspapers or magazines, and others scan codes at the supermarket. Whether you have a steady group of couponers or just a few people in your household that you know want to save money, couponing is an easy way to get started. Here are 7 tips to help you save money and stay organized with your coupons! Save money by shopping with your coupons As a rule of thumb, the more you're using your coupons, the more you'll save. Although it may be tempting to grab a coupon when you see a good deal, couponers suggest that you use a coupon every time you shop and only give yourself a break when you're all out of coupons. There are a couple of reasons to follow this rule. One, if you end up with a coupon booklet with 50+ coupons, you'll start to run out of ways to use them. You may also start to see prices at the store become higher and higher, because you're not using your coupons! 2. Make a coupon organizer for your kitchen Make sure to find a way to keep your coupons organized and together. You may start with a shoebox, but be sure to create a space in your kitchen for it. You may want to try sticking a pouch in your kitchen drawer for your coupons. You can then just grab a pouch as you're about to make your grocery list and get ready to buy what's on it. Or you can make your own coupon
