Q: How to upgrade CUDA driver on Ubuntu 14.04? I'm currently using Ubuntu 14.04. I'm trying to run some applications on one application server (which I have no control over) using the nvidia-cuda-toolkit 4.1 package. The CUDA toolkit is on version 4.1.0-13 on that machine. I'm running Ubuntu 14.04.4 LTS on that server. I've confirmed that the drivers are installed, and that nvidia-driver-selector reports a version of 352.22. Unfortunately, my applications are running the 4.1 version of CUDA, not the 4.2 version. I can't upgrade the CUDA toolkit on the server, so I want to try to upgrade the driver on my own machine. When I run nvidia-smi, it says that the version of CUDA driver is 352.22. When I do apt-get upgrade, it has no idea that the CUDA toolkit is 4.1 and installs the 352 driver. I have tried to install the latest driver package with apt-get install nvidia-driver-396 and running update-alternatives --install to select 396, but this installs the 352 driver again. Is there a safe way to upgrade a CUDA driver from 352 to at least 4.2? A: Check the version of the NVIDIA driver with: `dpkg -l | grep -e 'NVIDIA|nvidia-'` If it is 352.25, you
