I would consider using the following formula to identify your cell reference, which will then allow you to fill the rest of the worksheet. This is a simple sum of values formula and you will need to input the formula into the cell, this will automatically identify your range. =SUM(--($B2:$B2=E2),--($C2:$C2=F2)) You can use the short form @+ to enter the formula into the cell, and it will use the entire column in the highlighted row. Also note that to fill down the entire column, you would need to enter the formula into the first row, and then save the worksheet. This will automatically fill the formula to all the cells in the column. This formula does have a slight flaw however. If a cell from column B is not equal to cell E (or F), it will count as a zero, which is not what you want. Hopefully this helps. Let me know if you have further questions. Thanks.
