Most of the stuff above is a free font, so if you want to use it you can download it, copy it to your computer, and use it on your designs. Make sure to read the License Agreement for a copyright notice. There are plenty of glyphs in it. Cooper Black is a very readable font, but the letters have a strong horizontal stroke which helps them stand out. By using a smaller space between the characters, you can balance the boldness of the letters to the point where it becomes more readable. Of course, this is not an absolute rule as sometimes you do have to use bigger letter spacing. Just be careful when you decide to do that. Look at this quote: "What should one do when the enemy is too strong? What should one do when the enemy's forces outnumber one's own? What should one do when danger lies about one's path? One should not look left or right; one should look straight ahead. The One who does not look back is soon forgotten, but the One who looks back loses the path." That quote from George S. Patton, Jr. And look, that quote is over an English text, so you have to make sure you use a bigger letter spacing when you use that font for an English design. A rule of thumb is to use half the normal line height for small caps. This rule of thumb also applies to Latin text and Asian text. This rule of thumb also applies for any kind of Asian or Latin text, not just for English or German text. Actually, this really applies to any non-Latin text where you are using a lot of capital letters. This is a another extremely useful font for headlines. These features are very innovative and very useful. I was looking for something like this for so long and I finally found it. If you are a designer, you can use this font for your design work. A lot of people actually use this font for creating flyers. If you want to download this font, visit getit free on Å» Daily Font. 5ec8ef588b
