What's Come to Light We spend billions of dollars every year on health care. In the U.S. alone, about $2.6 trillion is spent on health care alone, representing 11 percent of our nation's economy. Add the possible cost of medical lawsuits, and the insured portion of the economy impacts the financial stability of our country. According to a new study, one in five women in the U.S. have filed a medical malpractice lawsuit. Of these women, a stunning 13 percent were obese (classing themselves as overweight), 5 percent were underweight (classing themselves as underweight), and 13 percent were normal weight. According to one of the study's authors, "Obesity has been shown to be a factor in medical malpractice, and the study shows that the problem is far worse than we thought." What's more, when weight loss surgery is performed in an obese patient, the chances of a second surgery is 57 percent for gastric bypass, 52 percent for gastroplasty and 75 percent for gastric banding.
