Política El diputado de la UDI, Ena Von Baer, dijo hoy que la presidenta del Senado, Gabriela Feigen, le habló de una "lista vengativa" que se les imponía a quienes se oponían a la causa Transandino. Esta semana la Corte Suprema confirmó la realización de la vigencia del organismo que fija condiciones para obras de infraestructura, el cual entre sus titulares preside un magistrado de la Corte Suprema, Juan Carlos Maqueda, en su criterio, instó a la presidenta de la Comisión de Transición del Senado, Gabriela Feigen, a retirar al presidente de la Región Metropolitana con el objetivo de "tener una supuesta lista vengativa" a sus adversarios. "Yo recibí una visita de la presidenta del Senado, Gabriela Feigen, quien me pidió que la despedida de este organismo se hiciera por razones de orden político, no por razones jurídico-institucionales", comentó von Baer, quien encabezó la Cámara de Diputados luego del asesinato de tres integrantes de la organización Mapuche, entre ellos el jefe de la Unidad Mapuche Julio Guillermo Pérez Riesco. "En ese momento le dije que no", agregó la legisladora, quien dijo que no supo de la visita del Senado a su domicilio, que se produjo a finales de noviembre. "Le he dicho a Gabriela Feigen que no tengo la menor intención de pedirle nada a nadie, ni de ir
