FALLS CHURCH, Va. — April 23, 2015 - Adtran, Inc. today released the OpenNMS Network Configuration Software to simplify the network design process. The 30 elements of the Creative Cloud, rather than 13, and the new Adobe Stock. If anyone can point out the bonus element in PhotoKit, please let me know. Sharing Web Albums come out of now — no need for AirDrop. The release is still broken for the iOS 12 Beta. If you want to use the latest version in conjunction with iOS beta releases, you'll need to upgrade to the iOS 11 Beta, but that would also bring the new iOS 11 bugs and features into Lightroom 5. You'll also need to be running the Lightroom 4 app from Apple's developer site to continue to use Lightroom 5 when you upgrade to iOS 11. Similar to browsing the creative cloud easily in a desktop app, the new mobile version has an integrated browser for Adobe Stock. With the new 5.3 version, if you're on a Mac, you can open directly from an iPhoto library. You can also select which desktop application will preview your image, either from the web or via an option inside the Lightroom 5 app. There's even an option to add a caption directly from the gallery. Lightroom 5's newest features may be a little different from how things worked in the original version, but they are easy to learn and maintain. In addition to the regular editing features found in Lightroom, the new version adds a dedicated "Rare" and "Low-key" collection. You can create a "Corrections" section, which enables you to fine-tune your contrast, sharpness, and levels. Lightroom 5's adjustment panel is much different from that of the original Lightroom. It now gives you sliders, rather than simply a list of options and sliders.
